SUMMER FESTIVAL

The text:

What's your idea of a good time? What about dancing in a rainy field with one hundred and fifty thousand other people while a famous rock band plays on a stage so far away that the performers look so tiny? It may sound strange but that is what many hundreds of thousands of young people in the United Kingdom (UK) do every summer: Why? It's because summer is the time for outdoor music festivals.

Held on a farm, the Glastonbury Festival Glastonbury Festival is the most popular and largest festival in U k. It is best known for its contemporary music, but also features dance, comedy, theatre, circus, and many other arts. It began in 1970 and was attended by one thousand five hundred people, each paying an admission price of £1.

Since the Glastonbury Festival has gone from strength to strength-in 2004 one hundred and fifty thousands fans attended, paying £112 for tickets to the three-day event. Tickets for the event sold out within three hours. Acts included experienced superstars such as Paul McCartney, Oasis, James Brown, as well as new talents like Joss Stone, Franz Ferdinand, and Black Eyed Peas.

Although many summer festivals are run on a profit-making basis, Glastonbury is a charity event, donating millions for local and international charities to draw attention to international poverty.

'Profit-making (Adjective): [usually before noun] (of a company or a business) that makes or will make a profit/ money
